He is important for what he is — a symbol of many good things for the crusaders. Just imagine what would be his fate, if he had not been Crusaders? He can kiss his own head. How painful would the journey be for this modest person, if he had remained in the solitude of his own folk, and had never again. Perhaps he had good luck, and his prayers were answered. For the rest, he is only a symbol of a grander thing. Once he was not just a symbol, but was, together with other crusaders, a companion of a greater man, and was a man in his own right, and under his protection people lived in freedom.
